Dear Prospective Student,

Thank you for your interest in applying for our Emerging Principles in Child & Youth Ministry (PCYM) School here in Thailand! We look forward to receive your application and trust that God will guide you as you seek His direction. Enclosed is all you will need, as well as a few instructions below to help you in the process.

But first ...

Some General Information:

The Principles in Child & Youth Ministry (PCYM) School is an accredited University of the Nations school which is designed to provide you with excellent teaching and tools for you to do children and youth ministries. Some of the content covered includes: foundational teaching on the character of God as it relates to working with young people, human development, understanding the physical, emotional and mental development from pre-birth to teens, examining problems of dysfunctional families and families at risk, foundational principles and values of Kings Kids, principles of releasing young people in worship, intercession, evangelism, and leadership.

A unique side to our particular PCYM here in Thailand is the focus on incorporating the outdoors and experiential learning in the teaching and outreach context. Students may develop their skills in facilitating outdoor NIKO camps for young people, and providing leadership for child and family camps.

The lecture phase will take place in YWAM Bangkok Training Center with student and staff housing in the Training center area and nearby. Bangkok is a province located in the central of Thailand with a nice weather surrounded by buildings and a lot of tourist places.
