PCYM stands for "Principles in Children and Youth Ministry".

The Purpose

The PCYM training course is registered with the University of the Nations and is offered in a 6 months or 12 month format, with the goal of equipping adults to work with teenagers, children and families. It is a residential training school, combining practical ministry experience with quality lecture input from local and international speakers.

The course focuses on essential foundations, principles and strategies of ministry to children, young people and families. Schools are held in several strategic locations around the world.

What is the challenge?

Almost half the world's population is under 18 years old. Three out of five children, on the world average, have experienced sexual or physical abuse before they are 16. There are millions of innocent lives world-wide that are being destroyed through abortion, wars and deprivation. Family disintegration leads to millions of kids living on the streets or exploitation by the sex industry. Never before in the history of the world has there been such an un-precedented attack on children and youth.

What will you do?

The Objectives

The PCYM will provide you with a Biblical perspective of children, youth and family in a church and unchurched context. It will give you opportunity for personal growth and character development which is essential for any work with young people. You will identify some foundational skills in relating and working with children and youth.

What will you learn?

The PCYM is designed to provide excellent teaching and tools for you to do child and youth ministries. Some of the content will cover

1. Foundational and inspirational teaching on the character of God as it relates to working with young people.
2. Human development: understanding the physical, emotional and mental development from pre-birth to teens.
3. Strategies for working with pre-teens and teens.
4. Examining problems of dysfunctional families and families at risk.
5. Understanding the foundational principles and values of KKI.
6. Principles of releasing young people in worship, intercession, evangelism, and leadership.
7. Program development.

Facts

Did anyone have a perspective for your life...?
Are you ready to invest into young people?

Many children grow up in the world without having ever heard about Jesus? They are the first descendants of a generation without God. We too, as Christians, often hold children and teenagers captive by not seeing the potential God has given them.

It depends on your perspective...
Do you see the need or the potential?

Children in God's eyes:

Made in His image (just as you are!), can know God and make Him known, have a future, can change the world, are unique, irreplaceable, loved, and accepted, can be God's friend and serve in His Kingdom, have a destiny in God!

After the lecture phase we will become active. For several weeks we will go on outreaches into Switzerland and other nations and put into practice what we have learned.

Time is short; let's all act while we still have time. We can serve and help now, so that a new generation will grow. We want to enable the new generation to be ambassadors for God in all spheres of society as well as everywhere God sends them.

Working with a new Perspective

50% of the world's population are waiting for you!

Don't put it off until tomorrow!!!!!!!!!!!!!!
